Discover Oregon's Bounty with our special fly/stay/drive packages

This fall, as the leaves are turning, the grapes are gathered, the hops are hopping, and farmers' fields yield to the harvest, it's time to discover Oregon Bounty. Come meet the vintners, chefs, brewers, distillers, innkeepers and farmers who make Oregon taste like Oregon. Travel down roads you've never driven, sample what these artisans make, grow and catch, and spend a night or two so you can discover more. There are lots of ways to get a taste of Oregon Bounty:

- Stay a night or two
Indulge yourself at one of the state's many hotels and historic inns as home base for your culinary adventure
- Visit a winery
Take a tour of Oregon's many wine growing regions and drop in for special tastings and culinary events
- See what chefs can do
Taste the autumn bounty at fine restaurants throughout the state where chefs blend local products into culinary decadence
- Be touched by spirits
Seep yourself in Oregon's growing craft distilling movement at one of 20-plus micro-distilleries, or sip many of them during the Great American Distillers Festival in Portland
- Be a hop head

It's your once-a-year chance to taste what Oregon's finest brewmasters can do with just-picked hops. Sample fresh hop beers from Oregon's top craft brewers, large and small at an Oregon Bounty Fresh Hop Beer "Tastival" produced by the Oregon Brewers Guild.

- Celebrate the harvest

Grab the family and head to the country for one of the many fall festivals and events happening all over Oregon.
